

PROTECT YOUR WORKPLACE FROM TERROR ATTACKS

2022

DECEMBER

Terror attacks can happen at any place and time. As more employees return to the workplace, it is important for organisations to help employees feel safe at their workplace. Read on for tips on how your organisation can prevent potential threats by adopting some of these workplace security measures.

ENHANCING BUILDING SECURITY

Potential intruders are less likely to target workplaces with high security systems. Consider installing surveillance systems with alarms and turnstiles, and implement security clearance at the entrance of your organisation to deter intruders. Building owners can also install bollards or barriers to prevent terror attacks using vehicles.

MANAGE WORKPLACE VISITORS

Your organisation can implement a visitor management system and screening protocols to ensure the safety of your premises. Require your employees to pre-register their visitors and inform them of the visitor guidelines before the visit.

EDUCATE YOUR WORKFORCE ON WORKPLACE SECURITY

Employees need to understand the importance of their role in preventing security breaches. Remind them that all important documents, confidential letters, and electronic devices should be locked away, especially if left unattended.

New Personal SOS feature on the SGSecure App

The SGSecure app allows users to report suspicious sightings to the authorities in a few simple steps – point, shoot and send. The latest version of the SGSecure app also includes a new Personal SOS feature for users who require emergency Police assistance but are unable to call '999' to speak to an operator. The feature will generate an SMS that allows users to quickly send an SOS message to the Police's SMS 71999 service when the feature is activated.
