

What Two Campuses Will Mean for Workers & Employers

Workers/Trainees	Employers
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ A constant resource throughout their working life: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Find out the latest on jobs and training; ○ Seek advise from career consultants; and ○ Attend industry and career talks. ▪ Select from a full range of courses; from certificate to diploma and even degree. ▪ Increase their versatility and productivity: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ “Mix and match” modular courses to meet their exact needs; and ○ “Cross train” for related jobs. ▪ Access to training by relevant CET providers (including tertiary institutions, such as Polytechnics and ITE) via referrals and collaborations. ▪ Train in real workplace settings through tie-ups between campuses and companies. ▪ Join informal “learning circles” to hear and learn from the best in their profession in Singapore and around the world. ▪ Showcase their skills and knowledge to potential employers. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Recruit well-trained workers or send existing workers to pick up new skills. ▪ Work with training providers on other initiatives such as traineeships and apprenticeships. ▪ For employers planning new investments or expansion: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Jointly develop customized courses and train a pipeline of skilled workers for their business needs. ▪ Deal with a single party at the campus, which can package services to meet current and future needs.