Profiles who have benefitted from Workforce Singapore's programmes

Steven Lee, 38, Assistant Manager (Engineering Design), Sembcorp Marine, Redeployment PCP for Marine Engineer

The mechanical engineering graduate joined Sembcorp Marine (SCM) an Assistant Engineer in 2003, straight after graduation and worked his way up the ranks to Engineer, Engineering Design (Machinery). As part of the company's efforts to overcome the challenges of the oil price slump in 2018, SCM started pivoting to new growth areas such as renewables and gas solutions, allowing them to enter emerging markets and prepare for the upturn. To support their move, the company started reskilling their existing workers to shift them into new job roles that arise from the transformation.

Steven and his colleagues were thus enrolled in a structured six-month redeployment PCP for Marine Engineer. As part of the training, Steven was given the opportunity to be posted overseas to learn from experts in gas-related technologies and solutions.

With the newly acquired skills and knowledge, Steven was able to confidently take on his new role, in which he had to lead the development of detailed mechanical process design, topside mechanical systems solutions and mechanical completion to support the construction and commissioning of Floating Production Storage and Offloading (FPSO)/LNG projects.

Two years on, Steven continues to advance in his career in the new growth area with SCM, and his contributions were recognised. He was promoted to Assistant Manager, Engineering Design, and continues to find joy and satisfaction in his work today.

George Wee, 39, Assistant Manager, Production (Marine and Offshore Engineering), ICF International Pte Ltd PCP for Marine Engineer

Upon referral from his friend, the Technical Sales Executive left his former precision engineering company in Sep 2018 to pursue better a new career in the cruise ship refurbishment segment in Marine and Offshore, joining ICF International Pte Ltd as an Assistant Manager, Production (Marine and Offshore Engineering).

While the nautical studies diploma holder had had some technical knowledge from his last role, he needed technical skills to fully assume his new role with ICF International. To ease his transition and plug his skills gaps related to cruise ship marine interior fitouts, ICF International enrolled him in the PCP for Marine Engineer.

Two years on, George remains committed to the company and optimistic about its prospects. Despite the challenges posed by COVID-19, ICF International continued to secure contracts including enhancing medical centre onboard cruise ship as part of COVID-19 pandemic healthcare measures put in place. George urges mid-career individuals like him to keep an open mind about their options and not be afraid to unlearn and relearn.

Loh Wei Hao, 25, Automation Hardware Design Engineer, Excel Marco Industrial Systems Pte Ltd, SGUnited Traineeships Programme

Being realistic about his options amid the current job market, the Naval Architecture graduate decided to be open to various pathways, including traineeships, as he wanted to use this time to pick up new skills and gain real-world experience.

He eventually landed the offer to join Excel Marco Industrial Systems Pte Ltd, an SME that specialises in process automation and safety systems for Marine and Offshore in Sep 2020. As an Automation Hardware Design Engineer trainee, Wei Hao will gain technical competencies and be exposed to the full project life cycle in the design, development and execution of process automation systems.

Almost two months into his traineeship, Wei Hao enjoys his time with the company and aspires to become a Technical Specialist for Process Automation and Safety Systems in the near future. He remains optimistic that the sector will recover and continue to grow as it pivots to new areas.
